List of National Poultry Improvement Plan Contact
Representatives and Official State Agencies, Livestock Sanitary Authorities and Other State Agencies Responsible for Administration of State Pullorum Laws and RegulationsForeword

The nine man Pullorum Committee, appointed to study the interstate aspects of pullorum disease laws and regulations, recommended that each State accept official lists of producers and shippers or sellers of hatching eggs, baby chicks, poults, or other newly hatched domestic poultry when such lists were prepared by the official State agency and the Livestock Sanitary Authorities of a given State provided such lists indicate: (1) hatcheries, and dealers in baby chicks, started chicks, turkey poults, other newly hatched domestic poultry and hatching eggs whose breeding flocks of such poultry have been tested for pullorum disease under official supervision and; (2) the maximum incidence of pullorum disease reactors found on the last test in each case. The committee also recommended that such a list should be issued annually not later than December 31st; followed by monthly amendments showing changes, and distributed to Livestock Sanitary Authorities and official State agencies of each State and to the Bureau of Animal Industry only.

The committee further recommended that an official label or certificate should be attached to each container of the above mentioned poultry products showing the name and address of the shipper, the authority under which the tests for pullorum disease were made, and the pullorum classification of the contents. The committee recommends that the official lists as described above, and the official label or certificate should be accepted as sufficient certification for the shipment of such poultry products into any State.

The Bureau of Animal Industry endorses this recommendation and will cooperate with the States in putting it into effect.

The committee requested the Bureau of Animal Industry to publish and distribute by December 1 of each year, a list of official State agencies, their contact representatives; Livestock Sanitary Authorities and other agencies responsible for the administration of pullorum disease laws and regulations who shall be eligible to receive the official State lists.

The following list is, therefore, published in accordance with the committee's request. The Bureau wishes to be advised promptly of any corrections that should be made in this list.
